AFFIDAVIT IN SUPPORT OF
AN APPLICATION FOR A SEARCH WARRANT

I, Julius Klevinskas, being first duly sworn, hereby depose and state as follows:

INTRODUCTION AND AGENT BACKGROUND

1. I make this affidavit in support of an application under Rule 41 of the Federal Rules of Criminal Procedure for search warrants for two businesses and two residences (four locations total): DUTTI FASHION LLC (“DUTTI FASHION”), the business located at 620 W. Historic Mitchell Street, Milwaukee, WI 53204 (Premises 1); JORDAN RIVER FASHION LLC (“JORDAN RIVER FASHION”), the business located at 3429 W. North Avenue, Milwaukee, WI 53208 (Premises 2); the residence located at 3937 W. Heatheridge Drive, Franklin, WI 53132 (Premises 3); and the residence located at 5588 S. 27th Street, Milwaukee WI 53221 (Premises 4); which are further described in Attachment A, for the items described in Attachment B.

2. I am a sworn law enforcement officer currently employed as a Special Agent with the Department of Homeland Security (DHS), Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) and have been so employed since approximately January 2023. I am currently assigned to the Chicago Field Division – Milwaukee Resident Office. Since becoming a Special Agent, I have received specialized training in various aspects of law enforcement and my responsibilities include conducting investigations of alleged criminal violations of federal law. Prior to my tenure as a HSI Special Agent, I was a Diversion Investigator with the United States Department of Justice (DOJ), Drug Enforcement Administration (DEA), Milwaukee District Office, from approximately July 2019 to January 2023

3. The facts in this affidavit come from my personal observations, my training and experience, and information obtained from other agents, law enforcement officers and witnesses.

This affidavit is intended to show merely that there is sufficient probable cause for the requested warrant and does not set forth all of my knowledge about this matter.

4. Based on my training and experience and the facts as set forth in this affidavit, there is probable cause to believe that contraband, as well as evidence, fruits, and instrumentalities of violations of Title 18, United States Code, Section § 2320 (trafficking in counterfeit merchandise) and Title 18, U.S.C. §371 (conspiracy to commit an offense), will be found at DUTTI FASHION (Premises 1); JORDAN RIVER FASHION (Premises 2); the residence located at 3937 W. Heatheridge Drive, Franklin, WI 53132 (Premises 3); and the residence located at 5588 S. 27th Street, Milwaukee, WI 53221 (Premises 4); further described in Attachment A. In my training and experience, businesses keep financial and other records to assist in the functioning of their business to keep track of their profits, expenses, inventory, and for tax preparation. As such, in my experience, many businesses retain business records for several years.

JURISDICTION

5. This Court has jurisdiction to issue the requested warrant because it is “a court of competent jurisdiction” as defined by 18 U.S.C. § 2711. 18 U.S.C. §§ 2703(a), (b)(1)(A), & (c)(1)(A). Specifically, the Court is “a district court of the United States . . . that has jurisdiction over the offense being investigated.” 18 U.S.C. § 2711(3)(A)(i).

PROBABLE CAUSE

Overview

6. Since approximately April 2020, Homeland Security Investigations (HSI) has been investigating AHMAD YOUSEF JUMAA ABULAWI (“AHMAD ABULAWI”), a Jordanian national, for the importation and trafficking of counterfeit goods through the operation of retail store-front businesses, in particular DUTTI FASHION, LE DUTTI FASHION, and JORDAN

RIVER FASHION, all located in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. U.S. Customs and Border Protection (CBP) have seized several international express consignment parcels from outside the United States destined for AHMAD ABULAWI and his businesses in Milwaukee, Wisconsin. As detailed below, the international shipments were falsely manifested and contained hats, wallets, watches, and other clothing and apparel merchandise containing counterfeit trademarks from various brand name designers, to include, but not limited to, Louis Vuitton, Jordan, Gucci, and Rolex. CBP Import Specialists have determined the manufacturer's suggested retail price (MSRP) for the seized property exceeded $1.6 million.

7. The investigation was initiated in conjunction with Edward R. Kirby & Associates (hereinafter referred to as "Kirby"), a licensed private detective agency in the State of Illinois. Kirby represents numerous brand name companies, including designer clothing brands. Since approximately 1985, Kirby has conducted investigations on behalf of companies such as Apple, Samsung, Louis Vuitton, Nike, and others regarding the manufacturing, sale, and distribution of counterfeit trademarked merchandise. As part of this investigation, HSI Milwaukee Special Agents have been in contact with Kirby's Vice President Kevin Read regarding the counterfeit merchandise sale at DUTTI FASHION, LE DUTTI FASHION, and JORDAN RIVER FASHION. Kevin Read has been a licensed Private Detective in Illinois since 1999 and has been trained by companies to identify counterfeit products. Kevin Read is authorized to work with law enforcement regarding individuals manufacturing and distributing counterfeit trademarked items.

8. As detailed in this affidavit, Kirby Investigators have conducted multiple covert purchases of counterfeit merchandise from locations associated with AHMAD ABULAWI and have concluded that some of the merchandise sold at these businesses was counterfeit. In October 2022, HSI Special Agents in conjunction with Kirby Investigators conducted an overt operation that resulted in the seizure of hundreds of counterfeit products from businesses owned and operated by AHMAD ABULAWI.

9. HSI Special Agents later learned that LE DUTTI FASHION had closed, and that the business was Administratively Dissolved in December 2022.

10. In January 2024, HSI Special Agents were contacted by Kevin Read informing them that the retail store-front business DUTTI FASHION was again selling counterfeit merchandise. HSI Special Agents also learned that another retail store-front business, JORDAN RIVER FASHION, believed to be owned and/or operated by BAHADDIN ABULAWI, was selling the same and/or similar merchandise to the counterfeit merchandise observed at DUTTI FASHION. Based on email communications, it appears that BAHADDIN ABULAWI and AHMAD ABULAWI are brothers.

11. I know from my training and experience that the sale of merchandise containing counterfeit trademarks can be very lucrative. Based on this investigation, I believe AHMAD ABULAWI, BAHADDIN ABULAWI, and other co-conspirators, known and unknown to this investigation, are knowingly importing counterfeit merchandise to multiple locations, including residences, and then selling the counterfeit merchandise for profit through the operation of retail businesses.

HSI Undercover Purchase at DUTTI FASHION

55. On or about August 13, 2024, HSI Special Agents acting in an undercover (UC) capacity conducted an undercover purchase of suspected counterfeit merchandise at Premises 1. Upon arriving at Premises 1, the UC Agents observed AHMAD ABULAWI exit the driver's side of a white Jeep Grand Cherokee, bearing Wisconsin license plate ACY5691, and immediately open the back passenger door. AHMAD ABULAWI was observed as he removed several Nike branded shoe boxes from his vehicle. Moments later, the UC Agents observed AHMAD ABULAWI give the Nike shoe boxes to an unidentified teenaged male subject (hereinafter referred to as M/1).

56. UC Agents exited their vehicle and attempted to enter Premises 1. The UC Agents encountered a locked, wrought iron door which led into the interior of the business. The door had a note affixed to it which directed customers to request assistance from the tobacco shop next door. A UC Agent entered the tobacco shop where he/she encountered M/1. The UC Agent told the subjects that he/she needed assistance next door. M/1 then exited the tobacco shop, entered Premises 1 and unlocked the wrought iron door.

57. Upon entering the location, the UC Agents encountered a large table displaying various shoe brands, to include Nike, Gucci, Louis Vuitton, Balenciaga and Dolce and Gabbana. After several minutes, the UC Agents began inquiring about the different shoes and the sizes available for purchase. M/1 helped the UC Agents by bringing out various shoes sizes and other merchandise that was not on display within the store. The UC Agents determined that most shoes were priced between $90 and $120, far below what genuine shoes bearing these luxury trademarks retail for. On display within the store were also hats, Louis Vuitton branded purses, Gucci-branded back packs and purses, Gucci-branded belts, and other accessories.

58. A UC Agent located a display case containing several luxury brand watches. A UC Agent identified a Rolex branded watch displayed in a green Rolex box. The UC Agent asked M/1 if the watch was a replica. M/1 stated that the watch was “not real, but they’re lookalikes that look real.” The UC Agents determined that the replica Rolex watch was priced at $130.² Other items on display in the store included various luxury branded belts.

59. During the undercover purchase, the UC Agents compiled the following items for purchase: three pairs of Nike athletic shoes, one pair of Gucci athletic shoes, one pair of Dolce and Gabbana athletic shoes, one pair of Louis Vuitton/Nike compilation athletic shoes, one Burberry purse, two Gucci belts, three Louis Vuitton purses, one Prada hat, a Rolex watch and bracelet, and a bottle of Aventus Creed branded cologne. The UC Agents asked M/1 for the price of their total purchase. Moments later, M/1 sent what appeared to be a text message to an unknown recipient and advised the UC Agents that he was not the owner of the business. M/1 stated that his uncle was going to come and determine the total cost for their purchase.

60. Several moments later, AHMAD ABULAWI entered Premises 1 and greeted the UC Agents. After determining the total cost of the items complied by the UC Agents, AHMAD ABULAWI advised the UC Agents that the total purchase was $2,260. A UC Agent asked AHMAD ABULAWI if they'd receive a discount if they paid in cash. AHMAD ABULAWI agreed, and the UC Agent countered by offering AHMAD ABULAWI $2,000 for the total purchase. AHMAD ABULAWI agreed and was given $2,000. AHMAD ABULAWI did not provide UC Agents a receipt or any proof of purchase.

61. A UC Agent advised AHMAD ABULAWI that he/she threw purse parties and was looking for high-end purses. UC Agent showed AHMAD ABULAWI photos of the high-end purses of interest. AHMAD ABULAWI stated that he could find those and could purchase them via a special order. AHMAD ABULAWI then provided the UC Agent with his direct phone number: 414-737-5380. Upon completion of the purchase, M/1 helped the UC Agents take their purchases to their undercover vehicle. During conversation with M/1, the UC Agents determined that he was AHMAD ABULAWI's sixteen-year-old nephew.

62. An online search of the phone number 414-737-5380 (via Google.com) showed that the phone number was listed as the contact phone number for a Facebook page associated with the name "Dutti fashion exclusive line", URL "<https://www.facebook.com/p/Dutti-fashion-exclusive-> line-100040197234954/.” This is the same phone number provided to the Wisconsin Department of Financial Institutions as the contact phone number for AHMAD ABULAWI. The Facebook appeared to have video and picture posts of merchandise similar to the counterfeit merchandise previously observed at DUTTI FASHION.

63. That same day, the purchased merchandise was transported to the HSI Milwaukee office. HSI Special Agents photographed the suspected counterfeit merchandise purchased by the UC Agents, pictured below, and noted that some of the merchandise was similar to the counterfeit merchandise previously observed at DUTTI FASHION. Furthermore, some of the merchandise had what appeared to be receipts, indicating that the merchandise was purchased in Hong Kong. In my training and experience, Hong Kong is a significant source of counterfeit consumer goods.

TECHNICAL TERMS

85. Based on my training and experience, I use the following technical terms to convey the following meanings:

- IP Address: The Internet Protocol address (or simply "IP address") is a unique numeric address used by computers on the Internet. An IP address looks like a series of four numbers, each in the range 0-255, separated by periods (e.g., 121.56.97.178). Every computer attached to the Internet must be assigned an IP address so that Internet traffic sent from and directed to that computer may be directed properly from its source to its destination. Most Internet service providers control a range of IP addresses. Some computers have static—that is, long-term—IP addresses, while other computers have dynamic—that is, frequently changed—IP addresses.

- Internet: The Internet is a global network of computers and other electronic devices that communicate with each other. Due to the structure of the Internet, connections between devices on the Internet often cross state and international borders, even when the devices communicating with each other are in the same state.
- Storage medium: A storage medium is any physical object upon which computer data can be recorded. Examples include hard disks, RAM, floppy disks, flash memory, CD-ROMs, and other magnetic or optical media.

COMPUTERS, ELECTRONIC STORAGE, AND FORENSIC ANALYSIS

86. As described above and in Attachment B, this application seeks permission to search for records that might be found at Premises 1, 2, 3, & 4 (each and together, the “SUBJECT PREMISES”), in whatever form they are found. One form in which the records might be found is data stored on a computer or cell phone’s hard drive or other storage media. Thus, the warrant applied for would authorize the seizure of electronic storage media or, potentially, the copying of electronically stored information, all under Rule 41(e)(2)(B).

87. Probable cause. I submit that if a computer, cellular telephone, or storage medium is found at the SUBJECT PREMISES, there is probable cause to believe those records will be stored on that computer or storage medium, for at least the following reasons:

- Based on my knowledge, training, and experience, I know that computer files or remnants of such files can be recovered months or even years after they have been downloaded onto a storage medium, deleted, or viewed via the Internet. Electronic files downloaded to a storage medium can be stored for years at little or no cost. Even when files have been deleted, they can be recovered months or years later using forensic tools. This is so because when a person “deletes” a file on a computer, the data contained in the file does not actually disappear; rather, that data remains on the storage medium until it is overwritten by new data.

- Therefore, deleted files, or remnants of deleted files, may reside in free space or slack space—that is, in space on the storage medium that is not currently being used by an active file—for long periods of time before they are overwritten. In addition, a computer’s operating system may also keep a record of deleted data in a “swap” or “recovery” file.
- Wholly apart from user-generated files, computer storage media—in particular, computers’ internal hard drives—contain electronic evidence of how a computer has been used, what it has been used for, and who has used it. To give a few examples, this forensic evidence can take the form of operating system configurations, artifacts from operating system or application operation, file system data structures, and virtual memory “swap” or paging files. Computer users typically do not erase or delete this evidence, because special software is typically required for that task. However, it is technically possible to delete this information.
- Similarly, files that have been viewed via the Internet are sometimes automatically downloaded into a temporary Internet directory or “cache.”

88. Forensic evidence. As further described in Attachment B, this application seeks permission to locate not only computer files that might serve as direct evidence of the crimes described on the warrant, but also for forensic electronic evidence that establishes how computers were used, the purpose of their use, who used them, and when. There is probable cause to believe that this forensic electronic evidence will be on any storage medium at the SUBJECT PREMISES because:

- Data on the storage medium can provide evidence of a file that was once on the storage medium but has since been deleted or edited, or of a deleted portion of a file (such as a paragraph that has been deleted from a word processing file). Virtual memory paging systems can leave traces of information on the storage medium that show what tasks and processes were recently active. Web browsers, e-mail programs, and chat programs store configuration information on the storage medium that can reveal information such as online nicknames and passwords. Operating systems can record additional information, such as the attachment of peripherals, the attachment of USB flash storage devices or other external storage media, and the times the computer was in use. Computer file systems can record information about the dates files were created and the sequence in which they were created, although this information can later be falsified.
- As explained herein, information stored within a computer and other electronic storage media may provide crucial evidence of the “who, what, why, when, where, and how” of the criminal conduct under investigation, thus enabling the United States to establish and prove each element or alternatively, to exclude the innocent from further suspicion. In my training and experience, information stored within a computer or storage media (e.g., registry information, communications, images and movies, transactional information, records of session times and durations, internet history, and anti-virus, spyware, and malware detection programs) can indicate who has used or controlled the computer or storage media. This “user attribution” evidence is analogous to the search for “indicia of occupancy” while executing a search warrant at a residence. The existence or absence of anti-virus, spyware, and malware detection programs may indicate whether the computer was remotely accessed, thus inculcating or exculpating the computer owner. Further, computer and storage media activity can indicate how and when the computer or storage media was accessed or used. For example, as described herein, computers typically contain information that log: computer user account session times and durations, computer activity associated with user accounts, electronic storage media that connected with the computer, and the IP addresses through which the computer accessed networks and the internet. Such information allows investigators to understand the chronological context of computer or electronic storage media access, use, and events relating to the crime under investigation. Additionally, some information stored within a computer or electronic storage media may provide crucial evidence relating to the physical location of other evidence and the suspect. For example, images stored on a computer may both show a particular location and have geolocation information incorporated into its file data. Such file data typically also contains information indicating when the file or image was created. The existence of such image files, along with external device connection logs, may also indicate the presence of additional electronic storage media (e.g., a digital camera or cellular phone with an incorporated camera). The geographic and timeline information described herein may either inculcate or exculpate the computer user. Last, information stored within a computer may provide relevant insight into the computer user’s state of mind as it relates to the offense under investigation. For example, information within the computer may indicate the owner’s motive and intent to commit a crime (e.g., internet searches indicating criminal planning), or consciousness of guilt (e.g., running a “wiping” program to destroy evidence on the computer or password protecting/encrypting such evidence in an effort to conceal it from law enforcement).

- A person with appropriate familiarity with how a computer works can, after examining this forensic evidence in its proper context, draw conclusions about how computers were used, the purpose of their use, who used them, and when.
- The process of identifying the exact files, blocks, registry entries, logs, or other forms of forensic evidence on a storage medium that are necessary to draw an accurate conclusion is a dynamic process. While it is possible to specify in advance the records to be sought, computer evidence is not always data that can be merely reviewed by a review team and passed along to investigators. Whether data stored on a computer is evidence may depend on other information stored on the computer and the application of knowledge about how a computer behaves. Therefore, contextual information necessary to understand other evidence also falls within the scope of the warrant.
- Further, in finding evidence of how a computer was used, the purpose of its use, who used it, and when, sometimes it is necessary to establish that a particular thing is not present on a storage medium. For example, the presence or absence of counter-forensic programs or anti-virus programs (and associated data) may be relevant to establishing the user's intent.
- I know that when an individual uses a computer or cellular phone to sell counterfeit goods through an e-commerce website, the individual's computer or cellular phone will generally serve both as an instrumentality for committing the crime, and also as a storage medium for evidence of the crime. The computer or cellular phone is an instrumentality of the crime because it is used as a means of committing the criminal offense. The computer or cellular phone is also likely to be a storage medium for evidence of crime.

From my training and experience, I believe that a computer or cellular phone used to commit a crime of this type may contain: data that is evidence of how the computer or cellular phone was used; data that was sent or received; notes as to how the criminal conduct was achieved; records of Internet discussions about the crime; and other records that indicate the nature of the offense.

89. Necessity of seizing or copying entire computers, cellular phones, or storage media.

In most cases, a thorough search of a premises for information that might be stored on storage media, a computer, or a cellular phone often requires the seizure of the physical storage media and later off-site review consistent with the warrant. In lieu of removing storage media, computer, or cellular phone, from the premises, it is sometimes possible to make an image copy of storage media, computer, or cellular phone. Generally speaking, imaging is the taking of a complete electronic picture of the computer, cellular phone, or storage media's data, including all hidden sectors and deleted files. Either seizure or imaging is often necessary to ensure the accuracy and completeness of data recorded on the storage media, computer, or cellular phone, and to prevent the loss of the data either from accidental or intentional destruction. This is true because of the following:

- The time required for an examination. As noted above, not all evidence takes the form of documents and files that can be easily viewed on site. Analyzing evidence of how a computer, storage media, or cellular phone has been used, what it has been used for, and who has used it requires considerable time, and taking that much time on premises could be unreasonable. As explained above, because the warrant calls for forensic electronic evidence, it is exceedingly likely that it will be necessary to thoroughly examine storage media, cellular phone, or computer to obtain evidence. Storage media, cellular phones, or computers can store a large volume of information. Reviewing that information for things described in the warrant can take weeks or months, depending on the volume of data stored, and would be impractical and invasive to attempt on-site.

- Technical requirements. Computers and cellular phones can be configured in several different ways, featuring a variety of different operating systems, application software, and configurations. Therefore, searching them sometimes requires tools or knowledge that might not be present on the search site. The vast array of computer hardware and software available makes it difficult to know before a search what tools or knowledge will be required to analyze the system and its data on the Premises. However, taking the storage media off-site and reviewing it in a controlled environment will allow its examination with the proper tools and knowledge.
- Variety of forms of electronic media. Records sought under this warrant could be stored in a variety of storage media, computer, and cellular phone formats that may require off-site reviewing with specialized forensic tools.

90. Nature of examination. Based on the foregoing, and consistent with Rule 41(e)(2)(B), the warrant I am applying for would permit seizing, imaging, or otherwise copying storage media, computers, and cellular phones that reasonably appear to contain some or all of the evidence described in the warrant and would authorize a later review of them consistent with the warrant. The later review may require techniques, including but not limited to computer-assisted scans of the entire medium, that might expose many parts of a hard drive to human inspection in order to determine whether it is evidence described by the warrant.

BIOMETRIC UNLOCK

91. The warrant I am applying for would permit law enforcement to obtain from the display of physical biometric characteristics (such as fingerprint, thumbprint, facial, or iris characteristics) to unlock devices subject to search and seizure pursuant to this warrant. I seek this authority based on the following:

92. I know from my training and experience, as well as from information found in publicly available materials published by device manufacturers, that many electronic devices, particularly newer mobile devices, and laptops, offer their users the ability to unlock the device through biometric features in lieu of a numeric or alphanumeric passcode or password. These biometric features include fingerprint scanners and facial recognition features. Some devices offer a combination of these biometric features, and the user of such devices can select which features they would like to use.

93. If a device is equipped with a fingerprint scanner, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her fingerprints. For example, Apple offers a feature called “Touch ID,” which allows a user to register up to five fingerprints that can unlock a device. Once a fingerprint is registered, a user can unlock the device by pressing the relevant finger to the device’s Touch ID sensor, which is found in the round button (often referred to as the “home” button) located at the bottom center of the front of the device. The fingerprint sensors found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Touch ID.

94. If a device is equipped with a facial recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her face. For example, Apple offers a facial recognition feature called “Face ID.” During the Face ID registration process, the user holds the device in front of his or her face. The device’s camera then analyzes, and records data based on the user’s facial characteristics. The device can then be unlocked if the camera detects a face with characteristics that match those of the registered face. Facial recognition features found on devices produced by other manufacturers have different names but operate similarly to Face ID.

95. If a device is equipped with an iris recognition feature, a user may enable the ability to unlock the device through his or her irises. For example, Samsung offers an Iris Scanner, which uses the biometric information of an individuals' irises to identify the user.

96. In my training and experience, users of electronic devices often enable the aforementioned biometric features because they are considered to be a more convenient way to unlock a device than by entering a numeric or alphanumeric passcode or password. Moreover, in some instances, biometric features are considered to be a more secure way to protect a device's contents. This is particularly true when the users of a device are engaged in criminal activities and thus have a heightened concern about securing the contents of a device.

97. As discussed in this affidavit, based on my training and experience I believe that one or more digital devices will be found during the search. The passcode or password that would unlock the device(s) subject to search under this warrant is not known to law enforcement. Thus, law enforcement personnel may not otherwise be able to access the data contained within the device(s), making the use of biometric features necessary to the execution of the search authorized by this warrant.

98. I also know from my training and experience, as well as from information found in publicly available materials including those published by device manufacturers, that biometric features will not unlock a device in some circumstances even if such features are enabled. This can occur when a device has been restarted, inactive, or has not been unlocked for a certain period of time. For example, Apple devices cannot be unlocked using Touch ID when (1) more than 48 hours has elapsed since the device was last unlocked or (2) when the device has not been unlocked using a fingerprint for 4 hours and the passcode or password has not been entered within a certain period of time. Biometric features from other brands carry similar restrictions. Thus, in the event law enforcement personnel encounter a locked device equipped with biometric features, the opportunity to unlock the device through a biometric feature may exist for only a short time.

99. Due to the foregoing, with respect to any person who is located in the SUBJECT PREMISES during the execution of the search and who is reasonably believe by law enforcement to be a user of a biometric sensor-enabled device that falls within the scope of this warrant, it is requested that law enforcement personnel may (1) press or swipe the fingers (including thumbs) of the person to the fingerprint scanner of the device found at the premises; or (2) hold the device in front of the person's face to activate the facial and/or iris recognition features, for the purpose of attempting to unlock the device in order to search its contents as authorized by this warrant.

EXPERT ASSISTANCE

100. Based on their unique expertise, HSI intends to utilize the assistance of personnel from Kirby to assist in the identification of counterfeit merchandise/property at the SUBJECT PREMISES, but only after law enforcement agents enter and secure each location and serve the warrants. This will allow agents to more efficiently identify counterfeit items for seizure and will help agents avoid seizing non-counterfeit items. Personnel from Kirby will not seize items or perform any actions other than to advise law enforcement agents on which items may be counterfeit.
